

Records pertaining to:

(c) Q & A's for all Institute communication requests

Q&A: The Canadian International Institute for Extractive Industries and Development

What is CIIED?

The Canadian International Institute for Extractive Industries and Development (CIIED) is a Canada-based international development institute that represents a unique collaboration between three universities: The University of British Columbia (UBC), Simon Fraser University (SFU) and L'Ecole Polytechnique (LEP).

Pages 110 through 113 redacted for the following reasons:

13

FAQs

Why was the CIIEID established?

As part of the Government of Canada's natural resources management initiative to advance global prosperity through responsible resource development, seed capital for the Canadian International Institute for Extractive Industries and Development (CIIEID) was awarded to the University of British Columbia (UBC), which works in coalition with Simon Fraser University (SFU) and École Polytechnique de Montréal (EPM) as an independent, international Institute.

The Institute is leveraging Canadian and international expertise in natural resources stewardship. Its aim is to contribute to the body of applied research and increase the technical and human resource capacity of developing countries through education, training and knowledge sharing.

Pages 115 through 119 redacted for the following reasons:

13

Q&A

CONFIDENTIAL-not for distribution

Prepared by Patricia Leidl, Strategic Communications Consultant

Draft @ January 27, 2014

What is CIIEID?

CIIEID is a Canada-based international development institute that represents a unique collaboration between three universities—The University of British Columbia (UBC), Simon Fraser University (SFU) and L’Ecole Polytechnique (LEP)—the Canadian Government, civil society and industry. Its’ aim is to assist national, regional and municipal governments to leverage mining resources into long-term sustainable livelihoods; a cleaner environment and more responsive and responsible governance.

Pages 122 through 125 redacted for the following reasons:

13

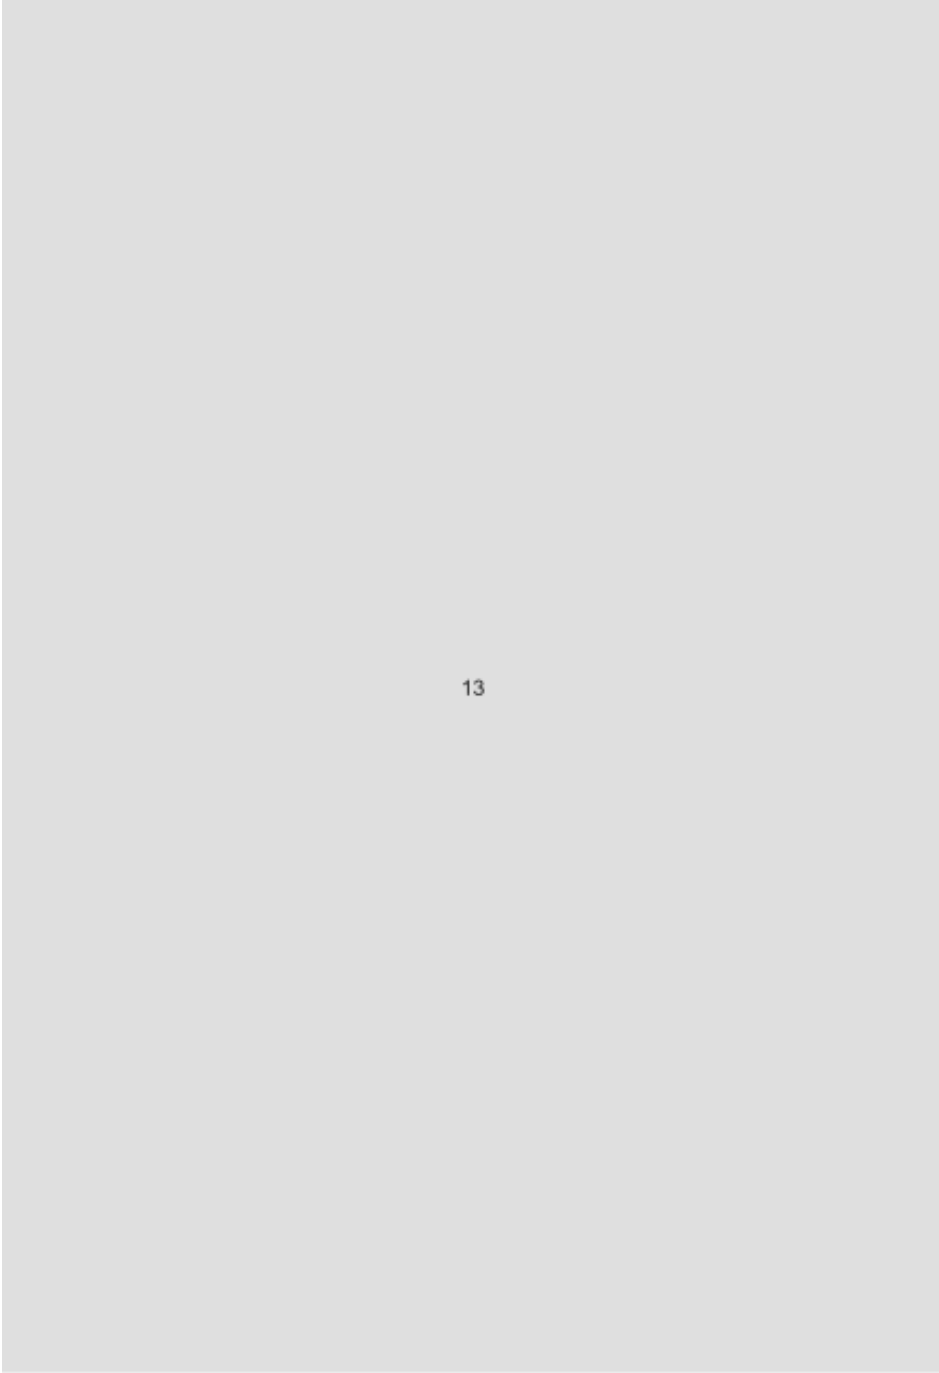

DRAFT

Q&A: The Canadian International Institute for Extractive Industries and Development (@January 23, 2014)

INTERNAL DOCUMENT: not for distribution

What is the CIIEID?

The Canadian International Institute for Extractive Industries and Development (CIIEID) is a Canada-based international development institute that represents a unique collaboration between three universities: The University of British Columbia (UBC), Simon Fraser University (SFU) and École Polytechnique de Montréal (EPM).

5

13

000131